I would like to offer this letter of endorsement for both the video news talk show Sustainable Today and its parent non-profit organization (group), The Center for a Sustainable Today.

I believe that this organization and the show can play a significant role in educating both the planners and the citizenry of the City of Portland as to what are the best pathways to a clean and healthy economic future for our city. I have found Sustainable Today episodes to be of excellent quality, featuring in-depth reporting on key issues with multiple levels of interest to both the average viewer and high level environmental planners locally and nationally.

The Center for Sustainable Today also focuses its efforts toward public education by demonstrating the goals they wish to achieve through public works and volunteer projects in conjunction with other non-profits to rid parks of invasive species and to build eco-friendly facilities and amenities for our community.

I am pleased to support the work of the Center for Sustainable Today and the television show they produce. Public education is an important tool that will help Portland become a sustainability model for the rest of the region and nation.

Thank you,

Randy Leonard
